A TRAGIC STORY.

There lived a sage in days of yore
And he a handsome pigtail wore;
But wondered much and sorrowed more,
Because it hung behind him.

He mus'd upon this curious case,
And swore he'd change the pigtail's place,
And have it hanging at his face,
Not dangling there behind him.

Says he, "The mystery I've found;
I'll turn me round," He turned him round,
But still it hung behind him.

Then round and round, and out and in,
All day the puzzled sage did spin;
In vain—it mattered not a pin—
The pigtail hung behind him

And right and left, and round about,
And up and down, and in and out,
He turned; but still the pigtail stout
Hung steadily behind him.

And though his efforts never slack;
And though he twist, and twirl, and tack;
Alas! still faithful to his back
The pigtail hangs behind him.

A ROUNDELAY.

Come sit beneath the hawthorne tree,
And press thy lips to mine;
I love a merry song for thee,
Will cheer thy heart like wine.

O well the bonny heath may smile,
The lark sing clear above;
For we will love a little while,
Though all in vain we love.

And green the leaves should be o'erhead,
The bracken brown beneath;
For oh, that thou and I lay dead
Upon the bonny heath!

Miscellaneous.

THE LOST WILL.

THE scenes I am about to describe occured about the year 1860, in a respectable family by the name of Culverton, in Orange County, New York.

The Culvertons had lived in the old family mansion and enjoyed the revenues of the family estate for many years without the slightest doubt that they had a right to it, when suddenly there started up, from goodness knows where, an individual who laid claim to the property, and seemed likely to prove his claim to all but the Culvertons themselves.

It was certain Jabez Hardy was the nearest relative, and certain that Mrs. Culverton was only a grand-niece of Hiram Hardy, deceased; but the Culvertons had lived with the old man for years, and he had promised, time and again to leave them everything. He had even declared that his will was made in their favor; and that such a document was actually in existence, Mr. Culverton could not doubt; but diligent search had been made in vain, and Jabez Hardy, whom the old man never saw, was to take the place of people he loved so fondly, and who had been his comfort in his last hours.

"It was a shame!" said every one.

"A cruel wicked thing!" sobbed Mrs. Culverton.

And Mr. Culverton, who had never expected a reverse, was quite crushed as the pending law suit progressed.

A thousand times a day he said,

"How providential it would be if uncle Hiram's will would turn up at this moment."

"I wonder how he rests, poor man, with such injustice going on."

But no matter what they say, or how they managed, no will was found, and Jabez rubbed his hands in triumph.

It was strange that while matters were in this condition one so deeply interested as Mrs. Culverton necessarily was, should dream of anything else; but dream she did, night after night, of an entirely different subject.

Inevitably, for a week at least, she had no sooner closed her eyes than she found herself in an intelligence office, full of employees of all ages and nations, and face to face with a girl of small stature, with white Scotch features, and singular blue eyes, wide apart and staring, who desired the situation of cook.

At first she did not like the girl, but in every dream she found her aversion vanish.

After a few moments' conversation, and invariably, it had began to melt, when the girl looked at her and said:

"I'd like to hire with you ma'am."

It was always the same office—always the same words were uttered—until Mrs. Culverton began to think there must be something in the dream.

"Though it can't come true," she said, "for while Johanna remains here I shall never hire another cook."

And just as she said this there was a scream in the kitchen, and the little errand girl ran in, frightened out of her senses, to tell how Johanna, lifting the wash boiler, had fallen with it and scalded herself.

Mrs. Culverton followed the young girl in to the kitchen, and found Johanna in a wretched condition; and the doctor being sent for, she was put to bed and declared useless for her domestic capacity, for at least a month to come. A temporary substitute must be had, and Mrs. Culverton, that very afternoon, went to New York to find one at the intelligence office.

Strange to say, in the bustle she had quite forgotten her dream, until she suddenly stood face to face with the very girl she had seen in it. A small young woman with very singularly blue eyes in a white face, and whose features betrayed Scottish origin. She had risen—this girl—from a seat in the office, and stood before her twisting her, apron strings and courtseying.

"I'd like to hire with you, ma'am," she said.

The very words of the dream, also.—Mrs. Culverton started, and in her confusion could only say: "Why?"

The girl blushed.

"I don't know," she said, "only it seems to me I'd like to live with you."

It seemed a fatal thing to Mrs. Culverton, but she put the usual questions and received the most satisfactory answers, except as to references.

"But I can't employ you without reference," said Mrs. C., knowing that fate had decreed that this girl should take a place in her kitchen.

"If you can't I must out with it," said the girl. "There's my lady's name, ma'am. She will tell you I am honest and capable; but she turned me off for frightening the family."

"How?" asked Mrs. Culverton.

"Seeing ghosts!" replied the girl.—"Every day I saw a little child in white, playing about the house; and all said there was no such child there, though there had been one once, but he was dead. Mistress said I pretended to see it for the sake of impertinence, and she discharged me; but I knew by her trembling that she thought I had seen a ghost. I went to a doctor and he called it optical illusion, and it would soon pass away; and sure enough, I have not seen it since I left the house."

It was a queer story; but Mrs. Culverton believed it, and before she left the office, had hired Jessie to fill Johanna's place, for the space of one month from that day. That evening she came and went to work with a will.

Dinner time passed comfortably and teatime came. The Culvertons never ate anything but a biscuit or a cake at this meal, and cups were handed about in the sitting room. Jessie came in at the appointed hour with her tray, served every one and then stood smiling before Mrs. Culverton as she said:

"Please ma'am, let me pass you, the old gentleman has not yet been helped. Yes, sir, in a minute."

"The—old—gentleman?" cried Mrs. Culverton.

"Yes ma'am—behind you in the corner there, please."

"There's no gentleman, young or old there," said the lady, "I can't imagine what you took for one.

The girl made no answer but turned quite white and left the room. Mrs. C. followed.

At first she could extort no explanation, but by and by the girl declared she saw an old gentleman sitting in an arm chair in the corner, who beckoned to her, and she fancied in a hurry for his tea.

"What did he look like? asked Mrs. Culverton.

"He was thin and tall," said the girl—"his hair was white and very long, and I noticed that one of his knees looked stiff, and a thick gold-headed cane beside him."

"Uncle Hiram!" cried Mrs. Culverton, "upon my word you've described my great grand-uncle, who has been dead for twenty years."

Jessie began to cry.

"I shall never keep a place," she said.

"You will turn me away now."

"See as many ghosts as you please," she said, "as long as you don't bring them before my eyes," and went back to her tea without saying a word to any of the family on the subject, although she was extremely mystified.

Surely if the girl had never seen her uncle Hiram—which was not likely, considering that he had been dead nearly her whole life time—she must have seen something in the ghost line; and if indeed, it were uncle Hiram's spirit, why should he not come to aid them in their trouble? Mrs. Culverton had always a little superstition hidden in her soul, and she soon began to believe this version of the case.

The next morning she went into the kitchen and shutting the door, said to Jessie:

"My good girl, I do not intend to dismiss you, so be quite frank with me. I do not believe that these forms are actual spirits. What do you think?"

"I think as you do, ma'am," said the girl. "Our folks have always seen ghosts, and grandfather had the second sight for ten years before he died."

"If you should see the old gentleman you told of again," said Mrs. Culverton "be sure and tell me. I'll keep the story from the young folks, and Mr. Culverton would only laugh at it; but you describe my dear old grand uncle, and my belief is you saw him."

The girl promised to mention anything that might happen, to her mistress; and from that day an interchange of glances between them and a subsequent conference in the kitchen was of frequent occurrence.

The girl saw her apparition seated on the sofa in the parlor, seated at the dinner-table, walking in the garden, and so life-like was it that she found it impossible to refrain from passing plates and cups and saucers to it, to the infinite amusement of people who saw only empty air in the same spot.

By and by she invariably spoke of her ghost as the old gentleman, and was no more affected by his presence than by that of a living being. If it was an optical illusion it was the most singular on record.

But all this while—ghost or no ghost—the figure never spoke, and never did any thing to help the Culvertons in their dilemma, and the lawsuit was nearly terminated, without the shadow of a doubt, in Jabez Hardy's favor.

In three days all would be over, and the Culvertons who had earned their property, if ever mortals did, by kindness and attention to their aged relative—whom they truly loved and honored—would probably be homeless.

One morning, Mrs. Culverton sat over her breakfast after the others had left the room, thinking of this, when Jessie came in.

"I've something to tell you ma'am," she said. "There's a change in the old gentleman.'

'What do you mean?' asked Mrs. Culverton.

'I've seen him twice at the foot of my bed in the night,' said the girl; "and though he always, before me, has been kind and pleasant looking, now he frowns and looks angry. He beckons me to go some where, and I don't dare in the night time.

'You must,' said Mrs. Culverton. 'I know he will come again, and I'll sit with you all night and go where you go. It may be of great use to us all Jessie.'

'I shan't be afraid, ma'am, if I have company,' said Jessie, in the most matter-of-fact manner and carried out the breakfast things.

All the day they never spoke on the subject; but, on retiring, Jessie found her mistress in her bed-room, wrapped in a shawl.

'I'm ready, you see,' she said. And Jessie merely loosened some buttons and hooks and lay down, dressed.

Ten o'clock passed-eleven-twelve. Mrs. Culverton began to doubt, when suddenly she saw Jessie's eyes dilate in a most peculiar manner, and, in an instant more, the girl said: 'Why here he is, ma'am!'

'There's no one there,' said Mrs. Culverton.

'Oh, yes ma'am! I see him,' said the girl.

'He's in great excitement ma'am; he's taking out his watch to look at, and the chain is made of such bright yellow hair, I thought at first it was gold.'

'His wife's hair,' said Mrs. Culverton. 'It was buried with him. You see old uncle Hiram. Does he look at me?'

'Yes, ma'am,' said Jessie.

'Uncle,' said Mrs. C., 'do you know me after all these years?'

'He nods,' said the girl.

'Have you come to help us—dear uncle?' said the lady.

Uncle Hiram was described as nodding very kindly and beckoning.

'He wants us to follow him,' said the lady, and took the light. The moment she opened the door Jessie saw the figure pass through it.

Mrs. Culverton still could see nothing.

Obedient to the girl's movements, Mrs. C., descended the stairs and stood in the library.

The ghost paused before a book case.

'He wants me to open it,' said Jessie.

'Do so,' said the lady.

He signs to take down the books,' said the girl.

And Mrs. Culverton's own hands went to work. Book after book was taken down—novels and romance, poems and plays.

A pile of volumes lay upon the library carpet, and still the ghost pointed to the rest till they were all down.

'He looks troubled, ma'am. He seems trying to think,' said the girl. 'Oh, ma'am, he's gone to the other case!'

And so, to cut a long story short, the four great book cases were emptied without apparent result.

Suddenly Jessie screamed:

'He's in the air. He's risen, ma'am to the top of the case. He wants me to climb up.'

'Get the steps, Jessie,' said her mistress—and Jessie obeyed.

On the very top of one of the cases, and covered by cobwebs, she found an old German book, and brought it down.

'This was there,' she said. Mrs. Culverton took it in her hand, and from between the leaves dropped a folded paper tied with red tape and sealed.

The lady picked it up; and read on the outside these words:

'The last will and statement of Hiram Hardy.'

For a little while she could only weep and tremble; soon she found words:

'Uncle,' she said, "in the name of my husband, and my dear children, I thank you from my soul. Does he hear me, Jessie?"

'Yes; he nods and smiles,' said the girl.

'Will you let me see you, uncle?' said Mrs. Culverton.

'He has gone,' said the girl. "He has kissed his hand and gone.'

And so he had for good; for from that moment, he was never seen again by mortal eye.

Nobody believed the story of his appearance. But the will had been discovered, without doubt, and the Culvertons were no longer in danger of expulsion from their old home. There they lived and died, and Jessie remained until she married; and all her life received every kindness from the family, who were indebted to her singular peculiarity for their comfort and happiness.

Whether Uncle Hiram's spirit really came to earth or not, is a question; but Mrs. Culverton always asserts that it did, and quarrels with every one who ventures to doubt the assertion.

AN EXAMPLE OF RECONSTRUCTION.—Those Radicals who are casting their eyes upon Cuba, St. Thomas, Terre del Fuego, and other outlying countries, as subjects for future "reconstruction," are hereby warned that the republic of Columbia is fully reconstructed, and is at the very head of civilization, even according to the most advanced Radical standard. At a recent meeting in that favored country, a gentleman, who for some time resided in the U. S., expressed the hope that the adoption of American institutions would soon place Columbia on a level with the great republic. He was summarily levelled by the following speech from a fully reconstructed Columbian. We quote from the Panama Star:

Mr. President: In proposing that we should adopt North American institutions, in order that we may rank amongst the most civilized nations of the world, our friend is merely repeating a vulgarism against which I do most solemnly protest. We are represented as an uncivilized people; but, sir, if to do what the Americans have done is to be civilized, then we are civilized: if to have done it before them is to be ahead of them, then we are at the head of civilization. For what do the Americans boast of? They have but recently abolished slavery; we have abolished slavery long ago! They have just proclaimed the equality of races, and are trying to hold up the negro; we have proclaimed that equality and held up the negro long ago. They have only finished their first civil war, rendered money scarce, and made a paper dollar not worth a dollar. We have had dozens of civil wars; have rendered money scarce, and made paper dollars not worth a dollar, long ago. They are beginning to tear up their Constitution, impeach their President, set up dictators; we have done all that long ago. They are at last going to the devil as fast as they can; we have gone to the devil long ago.

Go on, Messrs. Stevens and company and ere long Columbia cannot throw it into your teeth that she is ahead of our own republic in the great work of reconstruction outside of the Constitution, and considerably outside of civilization.

Who are Rebels against the Laws, and Traitors to the Government.

AT an anti-slavery meeting in New York, May 1844—

Resolved, That secession from the Union is the duty of every Abolitionist.

Resolved, That fourteen years of warfare against the slave power have convinced us that every act done in support of the American Union rivets the chains of the slave—that the only exodus of the slave to freedom, unless it be one of blood, must be over the remains of the present American Church, and the grave of the present Union.

Resolved, That the Abolitionists of this country should make it one of the primary objects of this agitation to dissolve the American Union.

OUR claim is disunion, breaking of the States.—Wendell Phillips.

THE Union is a lie—I am for its overthrow—Up with the flag of disunion.—W. L. Garrison.

IT (the Republican) is the first sectional party ever organized in this country. It does not know its own face, and calls itself national—It is sectional. The Republican party is a party of the North, pledged against the South.—Wendell Phillips.

SENATOR HALE in 1850 presented two petitions praying Congress to devise some plan for the dissolution of the American Union. These petitions received three votes—John P. Hale, Wm H. Seward, S. P. Chase.

I CAN conceive of a time when this Constitution shall not be in existence: when we shall have an absolute military dictatorial Government.—N. P. Banks, 1856.

THE Constitution is the father of all our troubles. The only hope of the slave is over the ruins of the Government, and the American Church.—H. W. Beecher, 1856.

THE dissolution of the Union is not primarily a question of conscience, but of policy. We make the Union, and we have the right to unmake it, if we choose.—Rev. H. W. Belloes, 1856.

I HAVE no doubt that the free and slave States ought, to separate. The Union is not worth supporting in connection with the South.—J.S. Pike.

You call this (agitation and disregard of laws) revolution. It is. We need revolution. We must and will have it. Let it come!—Carl Schurz, 1860.

IN 1856 Sumner predicts war, as the result of the "irrepressible conflict"—"War fratricidal, parricidal war—an accumulated wickedness beyond the wickedness of any war in human annals."

"THEN, the free States and Slave States of the Atlantic, divided and warring with each other, would disgust the free States of the Pacific, and they would have abundant cause and justification for withdrawing from a Union, productive no longer of peace, safety and liberty to themselves." Thus Wm. H. Seward in 1856, encouraged secession.

"IF these infernal fanatics and Abolitionists ever get power in their hands they will override the Constitution, set the Supreme Court at defiance, change and make laws to suit themselves, lay violent hands on those who differ with them in their opinion, or dare question their infallibility; and finally they will BANKRUPT THE COUNTRY AND DELUGE IT WITH BLOOD. Daniel Webster.

THIRTEEN things which render young people very impolite:

1. Leaving meeting before it is closed.
2. Whispering in meeting.
3. Gazing at strangers.
4. A want of reverence for superiors.
5. Loud laughter.
6. Reading when others are talking.
7. Cutting finger nails in company.
8. Leaving strangers without a seat.
9. Reading aloud, singing or whistling in company without being asked.
10. Receiving presents without some manifestations of gratitude.
11. Laughing at the mistakes of others.
12. Correcting older persons than yourself.
13. Answering questions when they are put to others.

A MONSTROUS BEARD.—We have been presented by Mr. Scott, Chief of Police, with the photograph of a gentleman now on a visit to this city, whose beard has grown to the monstrous length of six feet within the last seven years. We understand that he has to carry it rolled up under his arm when walking—otherwise, it would trail on the ground. The name of the individual who wears this singular looking appendage is Andrew Keppen. His beard is of a perfectly natural growth, and from its appearance, one would judge that, if wrapped around his body, it would afford almost as good a covering as a blanket.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

IN a certain family, not long since, a pair of twins made their appearance, and as a matter of course, were shown to their little sister of four years. Now, it so happened that whenever a rather prolific cat of the household had kittens, one of them, of course the prettiest, was saved, and the rest drowned. When the twins were shown the child by their happy father, little M—— looked at them long and earnestly, and at length putting her little finger-tip on the cheek of one of them, looked up, and said, with all the seriousness possible—Papa, "I think we'll save this one."

FREDDY, a fair-haired youngster of four summers, the other day, after being some time lost in thought, broke out thus: "Pa, can God do anything?" "Yes, dear." "Can he make a two-year-old colt in two minutes?" "Why, he would not wish to do that, Freddy." "But, if he did wish to, could he?" "Yes, certainly, if he wished to." "What, in two minutes?" "Yes, in two minutes." "Well, then, he wouldn't be two years old, would he?"

Impeachment.

THE trial of President Andrew Johnson on the impeachment charge presnted by the House, was formally opened in the Senate on Monday, March 30th. The Chief Justice took his seat at 12:30, the House of Representatives entered in a body, the President appeared by his counsel who took their seats at the table, and the Managers also entered and took their seats.

The Senate and galleries were crowded with many persons supposing themselves distinguished, and among the foreign Ministers were the English and Prussian and Swedish. The appearance of things was a mixture of the imposing and tawdry. All of the active men having during the last month, read themselves up on Macaulay's, Warren Hastings, vainly and ridiculously tried to ape the splendid description of that scene by the eloquent essayist.

B. F. Buttler of Massachusetts on behalf of the Managers commenced his opening speech at 12: 45, and concluded it at 8:53. Various opinions are expressed as to the speech, but it seems to be considered a rather abler argument than Butler was thought able to make. It is of course the strongest possible view of the case against the President, made by his bitterest enemy, and reading it no man can fail to be impressed with the weakness of the facts, as a base for an impeachment and conviction.

On the conclusion of Gen. Butler's speech. Mr. Bingham of the Managers, arose and said.

MR. PRESIDENT: The Managers on the part of the House are ready to proceed with the testimony to make good the Articles of Impeachment exhibited by the House of Representatives against the President of the United States, and my associate, Mr. Wilson, will present the testimony.

Mr. WILSON—I offer, first, on behalf of the Managers, a certified copy of the oath of office of the President of the United States, which I will read:

"I do solemly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States, and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

(Signed) ANDREW JOHNSON.

To which is attached the following certificate:

I, SALMON P. CHASE, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, hereby certify that on the 15th day of April, 1865, at the City of Washington, in the District of Columbia, personally appeared ANDREW JOHNSON, Vice-President, upon whom by the death of ABRAHAM LINCOLN late President, the duties of the office of President have devolved, and took and subscribed the oath of office above set forth.

(Signed) SALMON P. CHASE,
Chief Justice.

Mr. WILSON read the attestation of the document by Frederick H. Seward, acting Secretary of State, and continued, I now offer the nomination of Mr. Stanton as Secretary of War by President Lincoln. It is as follows:

In Executive session, Senate of the United States, Jan. 13, 1862, the following message was received from the President of the United States by Mr. Nicolay, his Secretary.

To the Senate of the United States.

I nominate Edwin M. Stanton, of Pennsylvania, to be Secretary of War in place of Simon Camron, nominated to be Minister to Russia.

(Signed) ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, Jan. 13, 1862.

I next offer the ratification of the Senate in Executive session upon the said nomination. "In Executive session, Senate of the United States, Jan. 15, 1862:"

Resolved, That the Senate advise and consent to the appointment of Edwin M. Stanton, of Pennsylvania, to be Secretary of War, agreeable to the nomination.

Mr. WILSON read the certification by John W. Forney, Secretary of the Senate. I next offer a copy of the communication made to the Senate Dec. 12, 1867, by the President. It is the message of the President of the United States assigning his reasons for the suspension of the Secretary of War.

Several Senators—Read it.

Mr. WILSON proceeded to read the somewhat lengthy document but the further reading was dispensed with and at 4: 20 the court adjourned.

SENATOR BUCKALEW.—The Pittsburg Republic (Republican) prints the following deserved editorial tribute to the ability and worth of Pennsylvania's Democratic United States Senator. It is an abundant and overwhelming answer to the low scurrility of the Columbia County Republican, and of the sneers of some pretended Democrats:

"It is with feelings of State pride, entirely unmixed with anything like partisanship, that we are led to make honorable mention of Hon. Charles R. Buckalew, United States Senator from Pennsylvania. We regard him as one of the ablest men of that body. His speeches are characterized by clearness of logic, sound reasoning, forcible argument, and loftiness and purity of rhetoric. Although an uncompromising Democrat, he never fails to command the attention and respect of Republican members, for he never so far forgets himself in the heat of debate, as to indulge in intemperate and ill-timed remarks. It would be well for the country if both the great political parties would always select such men as their representatives in the councils of the nation."

SEEING that P. John and his Delegate are in favor of Ben. Wade and against the Soldier's Friend;" we trust they will be delighted at the following extract from a Speech of Wade, made not very long ago. Said Mr. Wade:

I am one of those who, not only when an election is pending, but at all times, believe in the wisdom, the constitutionality, and the propriety of the Virginia resolutions of 1798 and 1799.—Appx. Cong. Globe 1855, page 213.

HORACE GREELY said at a meeting of the Congressional Temperance Society, that "more men lost their lives during the war on account of drunken officers in command than were lost by rebel bullets." Horace has been saying some rather severe things of General Grant lately.

THE Impeachment trial opened formally on Monday the 30th. We furnish to our readers a carefully prepared synopsis of the proceedings.

The Buckshot War.

NUMBER 3.

IN the meantime, the Clerk, Francis R. Shunk, proceeded regularly in the discharge of his duties. A motion to proceed to the election of Speaker was put by the Clerk, carried, the list of members deliberately called over, and fifty-five voted for William Hopkins, [President of the late Democratic Convention at Harrisburg.] He was declared duly elected, was sworn in, took his seat, and proceeded with his duties. Stevens and his Rump House dispersed, leaving Hopkins and the duly qualified fifty-five members, being a quorum, in possession of the Hall, books, minutes and records.

On Thursday following, the Bolters met at a private house in Harrisburg, and organized with forty-five members. They continued thus to meet at various places until the 25th of December, when the whole thing collapsed, the seceders coming in and taking the oath, except Stevens, who, disgusted and demoralized, resigned and went home.

In the Senate on the same 4th day of December, another farce was being enacted. Charles B. Penrose, a follower of Stevens, was in the Chair, not by any right, but because he had been Speaker at the last session. After the adjournment of the Rump, the Bolters went into the Senate Chamber to arrange matters there. Penrose was carrying things with a high hand. He permitted the Federalists to speak, but whenever General Rogers, of Bucks, or Mr. Charles Brown of Philadelphia rose, he rapped with his mallet, and said they were out of order, refusing to hear them, or any other Democrat.

Some demonstrations of dissatisfaction induced Penrose to leave the Chair, and Mr. Pearson was then elected Speaker, the majority of the Senate being anti-Democratic. As soon as possible, the opposition Senators from Philadelphia, Hanna and Wagner, were sworn in, and being the minority candidates, the gross outrage stirred the hearts of the people. On motion, Hon. Charles Brown was permitted to speak, and suspecting the gathering storm, Speaker Pearson called Gen. Rogers to the Chair, and left the Chamber. There were, however, no threats of personal violence, nor were there any armed men in or about the Legislative Halls, except, perhaps, the "Halifax Bullies" of the Radicals. But the wicked flee when no man pursueth, and "Penrose, Burrowes, Stevens and Fenn, left the Senate Chamber through the back window."

Thus both Houses were, on the first day of meeting, permanently and regularly organized. The House, by the election of William Hopkins, Democrat, as Speaker; and the Senate, by the election of Mr. Pearson, a Whig. In that result, which indicated the state of majorities in each House, all the citizens and spectators acquiesced; and all difficulty and danger seemed to be over, even although the Rump Bolters still met in out-of-the-way houses and places. But the conspirators were not satisfied, and were preparing another scene in the drama, and bringing other actors upon the stage, to strut their little hour. The object being to overawe the Hopkins or majority House, and force the official reconstruction of the Stevens-Cunningham faction.

Sharp and Clear.

THE following extract from the President's answer to the Tenth article of Impeachment is as sharp and clear and sound as any thing we have seen. The people will sustain the view promulgated, and endorse every one of the statements made in the extract.

And this respondent, not waiving or at all disparaging his right of freedom of opinion, and of freedom of speech, as hereinbefore or hereinafter more particularly set forth, but claiming and insisting upon the same, further answering the said tenth article, says that the views and opinions expressed by this respondent in his said addresses to the assemblages of his fellow citizens, as said article or in this answer thereto mentioned are not and were not intended to be other or different from those expressed by him in his communications to Congress—that the eleven States in insurrection never ceased to be States of the Union, and that they were then entitled to representation in Congress by loyal Representatives and Senators as fully as the other States of the Union and that consequently the Congress, as then constituted, was not in fact a Congress of all the States, but a Congress of only a part of the States. This respondent always protesting against the unauthorized exclusion therefrom of all of the said eleven States, nevertheless gave his assent to all laws passed by said Congress which did not, in his opinion and judgment, violate the Constitution, exercising his constitutional authority of returning bills to said Congress with his objections when they appeared to him unconstitutional or inexpedient; and further the respondent has also expressed the opinion both in his communication to Congress and in his address to the people, that the policy adopted by Congress in reference to the States lately in insurrection did not tend to peace, harmony, and union, but, on the contrary, did tend to disunion and the permanent disruption of the States, and that, in following the said policy, laws have been passed by Congress in violation of the fundamental principles of the Government, and which tended to consolidation and despotism, and such being his deliberate opinion, he would have felt himself unmindful of the high duties of his office if he had failed to express them in his communications to Congress, or in his addresses to the people when called upon by them to express an opinion on matters of public or political consideration.

IT is a disgrace to the age we live in, and a reproach to those who have the morals and interests of the community at heart, or who should have, that the market is flooded with vulgar, indecent, even obscene publications. There are two or three Newspapers published in New York, and which in some manner find their way into all the towns and villages of our State, which no virtuous or pure minded man or woman would care to see in the hands of young people. There is no calculating the amount of harm such publications do. They are a flying pestilence and carry with them a poison worse than death. It would be well for the Legislature to pass a law making it a misdemeanor to sell these sheets, coupled with penalties sufficiently heavy to deter dealers from circulating them, and it would be a decided help to the morals of the community. There are some sores upon the body politic which law-makers cannot reach, but when evil is brought fairly in view, and is remediable, for the sake of common decency and with an ordinary desire to preserve the well being of the State, the remedy should be applied at once and as severely as possible.

WASHINGTON, March, 27.

SUPREME COURT BILL.

THE bill withdrawing the appellate jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of the United States in habeas corpus cases is now a law, the Senate yesterday having repassed it over the Executive veto, and the House to-day, by a vote of 112 to 34, did the same thing. When it came up for consideration Mr. Wilson, of Iowa, (with whom it originated) proposed to deal out fifteen minutes of his hour to Judge Woodward, of Pennsylvania, in which to discuss the great question involved in the measure. That gentleman, however, very properly declined to accept such a proposition, and finally succeeded in obtaining half an hour for his argument in opposition to the bill. Radical legislation in Congress nowadays is simply machine work. The necessities of the party and the "previous question" are all that is required to rush the most important measures through, without even time for reflection upon their real character.

THE GEORGIA AND M'CARDLE CASES.

The general opinion here is that the Georgia injunction case, now pending before the Supreme Court, will not be heard this term; indeed, this is certain from the action of the Court to-day in declining to hear argument thereon. It is also believed that the passage of the act taking away the appellate jurisdiction of the Court in habeas corpus cases has put an end to the McCardle case in its present form, and therefore a favorable decision need not be expected thereon, as the majority of the Court will probably hold that they have no jurisdiction in the premises.

WASHINGTON, March 30.

THE Senate resumed the trial of the President yesterday. Mr. Wilson submitted certain documents as matters of form, relative to the removal of Secretary Stanton. Documents were submitted also showing that the President in issuing certain civil commissions to officers after the passage of the Tenure of Office Act, had caused alterations to be made in the forms to make them conform to the requirements of that act. Mr. Van Horn and Mr. Moorhead related the conversation which occurred between Secretary Stanton and Gen. Thomas when the latter demanded possession of the War Office. Mr. Burleigh delegate in Congres from Dakota, to whom Gen. Thomas had made certain statements regarding his obtained possession of the War Office, was next sworn but Mr. Stanbery objected to the relevancy of this testimony. The Chief Justice overruled the objection, whereupon Mr. Drake objected to that officer making any decision whatever and claiming that the power to decide all matters of this nature was vested in the members of the Court. The Chief Justice held that it was his duty to decide primarily upon all questions of law and evidence, but that an appeal could be taken from his decision, and the question submitted to the Senate on the demand of any Senator. This gave rise to a lengthy debate, the Managers sustaining Mr. Drake and the President's counsel supporting the ruling of the Chief Justice. The yeas and nays were called on a motion that the Senate retire for consultation, resulting in a tie vote, when the Chief Justice gave the casting vote for the affirmative and thereupon the Senate retired. After an absence of three hours and a half the Senate returned, and it was announced that the Chief Justice was sustained by a vote of 31 to 19, and that the seventh rule had been correspondingly amended. The Court then adjourned.

WASHINGTON, April 1.

THE impeachment question monopolized the attention of Congress to-day Mr. Sumner moved to have the Journal amended, so as to show that the Senate regarded the vote of the Chief Justice on the question of the Senate retiring for deliberation as unauthorized. Lost—yeas 21, nays 27. Messrs. Burleigh, Wilkeson, and Karsener were examined as witneses but their testimony elicited nothing new.

THE following complimentary allusion to General Ent, the Democratic candidate for Surveyor General, we find in the Blairsville Press, a sheet of the extreme radical stripe. The editor, Mr. Birkman, was in the same corps with Gen. Ent, and therefore speaks by the book:

"We made a mistake last week in stating that the Democratic State Convention nominated Mr. Wellington, of Columbia county, for Surveyor General. We were led into this by the telegraphic reports published in the Pittsburg dailies. It should have been Gen. Wellington H. Ent, of Columbia co., the last commander of the 6th Regt. of P. R. V., and as brave and gallant a soldier as ever left the State. We are glad the Democrats nominated him. He is a foeman worthy of any man's steel. There will be more credit defeating him than one of those stay-at-home patriots so universally brought out by that party when there is a prospect of success.

While we despise the principles of the party which nominated Gen. Ent, we will never permit one word of personal detraction to be published against him without our feeble effort being made to refute it."

WE are not easily surprised, but when a gallant soldier of the war of 1812 told us a few days ago, that a pesky radical from Espytown had charged that Senator Buckalew and Colonel Freeze had been instrumental in instigating the military raid into Columbia county, we certainly though it to surpass ordinary radical lying. And this the more especially, since at the time, and during the military trials, such papers as the Harrisburg Telegraph and the Philadelphia Inquirer charged Col. Freeze with being the "leader of the Confederacy," and urged his arrest.

Our friend was therefore entirely right in giving the lie direct to the assertion, and he might have added also, that the party retailing the slander knew he was lying at the time. We suppress the names for the present.

SEVENTEEN YEAR LOCUSTS.—The Centreville (Md.) Observer says that this is the year for the re-appearance of the seventeen year locusts. These insects made their first chronicled appearance here in Maryland in 1799, and returned every seventeen years after that time. They last appeared in 1851, of which many of our readers doubtless have a distant recollection.

THE American Silver Coins which people so rarely see, are circulating in such great numbers in Canada that they are a drug in the market. $7,000,000 of these coins are now circulating in Canada, and the Canadians are anxious to get rid of them, and impose a duty of 15 per cent, on further importations.

CALL FOR THE NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

WASHINGTON, February 22, 1868.

The National Democratic Committee, by virtue of the authority conferred upon them by the last National Democratic Convention, at a meeting held this day at Washington, D. C. voted to hold the next Convention for the purpose of nominating candidates for President and Vice-President of the United States on the 4th day of July, 1868, at 12 o'clock M., in the city of New York.

The basis of representation, as fixed by the last National Democratic Convention, is double the aggregate of Senators and Representatives in Congress of each State under the last apportionment.

Each State is invited to send delegates accordingly.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY

For the cure of coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Asthma, Influenza, Croup, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis Predisposition to Consumption, &c., &c.

This great remedy is too well known and is performing to much good to make it necessary to go into an elaborate discussion of its merits. Suffice it to say that it still maintains its supremacy in curing diseases of the most obstinate character, and that all who suffer from the above complaints, after having tested this remedy, seldom have occsion to resort to other appliances to insure a perfect restoration to health.

Testimony of MR. PETER SHAW.

WEST WINFIELD, N. Y., Dec. 10, 1867.

MESSRS. S. W. FOWLE & SON, Boston.

GENTLEMEN.—During the winter of 1858 I was very much out of health, afflicted with a severe Cough, Pain in the side and Lungs and a general depression of health to such an extent as to grant-ly alarm myself and friends as to the result. During this time I tried several highly recommended remedies, with little or no good result, and had concluded to try the effect of a southern climate upon my health; but, before carrying this resolution into effect, I was induced by the urgent solicitation of your agent, Mr. Huntly, to give Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry a trial. I did so, and to my great joy I found immediate and permanent relief by the use of only one bottle. I am now in as good health as ever. I believe your balsam one of the best remedies, for Coughs, Colds and all Lung diseases, now in use, and conscientiously recommend it as such. Yours truly, PETER SHAW.

Prepared by Seth W. Fowle & Son, 18 Tremont St., Boston, and for sale by Druggists generally.

GRACE'S CELEBRATED SALVE.

We are constantly hearing favorable reports from those who have tried this remedy. Amy Anthony, wife of Mark Anthony, of this city, and living at No. 9 Locust Street, afflicted with a felon on the finger, was recently induced to make a trial of this Salve. Almost instantly she experienced relief from the pain, which had been almost unendurable. Every other remedy had thus proved unavailing. Those who have tried it once are satisfied of its merits, and nothing will induce them to be without a supply.—Gulf River News.

If any of our readers are prematurely gray, or are troubled with falling of the hair, dandruff or itching of the scalp, they have only to use Ring's Vegetable Ambrosia, and their trouble will soon be over. The preparation is not only a restorer of gray hair, but one of the most elegant hair dressings ever seen. It also by softening and invigorating the hair, prevents premature baldness and in many cases restores hair to bald heads.

The Columbian.

BLOOMSBURG, FRIDAY, APRIL 3, '68.

OUR receipts for March are gratifying. They look much like breaking up.

WE call special attention to the new advertisements in this weeks paper. Read them.

E. W. WYNKOOP & Co's., Spring term of School will commence on the 6th of April next. 2t

THOS. W. HUTCHINS would announce to the public that he is practicing dentistry at Mifflinville.

WE desire to correct an error into which we were unwittingly led last week. The name of Henry Bittenbender mentioned as having been found dead, should have been John Bittenbender.

WANTED.—In order to complete our files, we want Nos., 11, 21, 27, 31, 32, 33, 34 and 35, of the COLUMBIAN published in 1866 by Geo. H. Moore. Any person sending the missing numbers will be suitably rewarded. tf.

WE are informed by Hudson Owen, the efficient Superintendent of the North Branch Canal that the water will be let in on Thursday April 9th. Boatmen and others interested will govern themselves accordingly.

JAMES MITCHELL, a miner in the employ of the Irondale Company had his hand badly crushed on Monday last by having it caught between a car and the rocks, where he was at work. The wound, though severe, is not one which will permanently disable him.

OUR neighbor, the Intelligencer, is ferociously indignant at Democratic papers for advertising the prospectus of the Independent. Suppose friend Chalfant, you examine your own columns, and give us your opinion about "The Radical," a journal ten times as ferocious as the Independent. "People who live in glass houses should not throw stones."

ANOTHER BURGLARY.—On last Saturday evening the office of W. G. Hurley, Esq., was broken into, probably by the same parties who have for weeks past been robbing hen-roosts, smoke-houses and entering churches and untenanted buildings. They succeeded in getting about a dollar's worth of stamps and three pairs of boots. Had they been men of sense they would have known better than to attempt to rob a lawyer's office! And woe to them if ever caught.

WE desire to correct a possibly wrong impression which our notice of the sale of the Exchange Hotel Buildings may have left upon the minds of our readers. Although Mr. A. J. Sloan has sold the Building in which he has so long carried on the business of merchandizing, he does not propose to retire. On the contrary we know his customers will be pleased to learn, that they can still find at the old stand, the most elegant and fashionable assortment of goods in Bloomsburg.

OUR enterprising townsman, Dr. H. C. Hower has prepared himself for the coming warm weather, and has on hand a full and complete assortment of hats and caps for Spring and Summer wear. The styles are unique, and may be relied on as being of the newest and most approved patterns. He has always kept the best collection to be found anywhere in this vicinity, but he seems determined to surpass himself this year. Don't fail to consult your own interests but call on him at once. His prices are even lower than they were last year.

DR. E. W. WELLS, successor to Dr. F. C. Harrison, has removed to the house formerly occupied by G. W. Collamer, on Centre St., below Third, one door below Peter Billmyer. Office at Hendershott's Drug Store, on Main St., opposite the American House. Office hours at House, from 1 to 2 P.M., at Drug Store, from 7 to 8 P.M. All orders left at either place will receive prompt attention.

N.B.—Special attention given to the study and treatment of the Brain, Heart, Blood, Skin, and to Scrofulous diseases.

GROSS SACRILEGE.—On Saturday night the Lutheran Church at Espy, was broken into by a band of impious wretches, and robbed of the communion set, and a small sum of missionary money; the party in addition committing such other acts of vile desecration that we will not shock our readers by their description. We learn that the Church at Stonytown was similarly entered. Such acts will surely meet with due punishment both here and hereafter, and show their perpetrators to be brutes in human guise.

STILL ANOTHER OUTRAGE.—The Bloomsburg Academy was forcibly entered on Saturday night last, probably by the same band of scoundrels who rifled the Church at Espy, Mr. Buckalew's house and Mr. Hurley's office. They gained an entrance by cutting out a pane of glass from one of the front windows. They obtained but little for their trouble, and after breaking a couple of lamp chimneys they decamped, taking with them various keys belonging to the building. It is high time that this lawlessness should be put down with a strong hand. Not only is the private property of our citizens endangered, but the good name and reputation of our usually well-behaved town, is seriously affected. We trust that the perpetrators may be discovered and punished to the full extent of the law.

ANDREW FREAS.—We are pained to learn of the death of Andrew Freas, a prominent, active and well known citizen of Centre Township.

It seems that Mr. Freas was attending the moving of William Hill, and going down a declivity near Follmer's saw mill, the breast chain broke, and the horses becoming restive, he got out to take them by the head. They got him under their feet and breaking loose drew the heavily loaded wagon over his body, both wheels crossing above the short ribs. He died before medical assistance could be obtained. Mrs. Hill with a babe in her arms, jumped from the wagon and escaped, almost miraculously, unhurt.

Mr. Freas was Commissioner of Columbia county some years ago and made an efficient and valuable officer, thoroughly acquainting himself with the duties of his place. He leaves a large family to mourn his very sudden and untimely death.

Every where the spring elections have shown gains for the Democrats.

FOR SALE:—A small building; can easily be moved. Apply at the office of the COLUMBIAN.

THE appearance of the grass and grain is highly satisfactory, and the farmers are anticipating good returns for their labor.

NEWLY elected Justices should at once send to the Prothonotary, notice of their acceptance, preparatory to receiving their Commissions.

How nearly Curtin, "The Soldiers' Friend,"
Came to a most untimely end,
The daily papers show;
For he was "neatly" stricken dead,
By a vote from Pahnam's "sheep's head,"
Not very long ago.

MR. Isaac Kuhn has purchased of Wm. B. Koons the Mausdwelling house on Second street. He has also removed the old buildings from the Biggs lot, nearly opposite, and their room is much handsomer than their company.

POVERTY is bad, but the worst kind of poverty is poverty of the blood: this makes a man "poor indeed," for it takes away his strength, courage, and energy; but enrich the blood with its vital element, Iron, by taking the Peruvian Syrup (a protoxide of iron), and you will feel rich and "as good as anybody." Try it.

DROWNED.—During the flood of last week, two men in a skiff were capsized near the timber-tip, in the Third Ward. One named Michael Cahill was drowned, and the other named John Tousy was rescued. The drowned man leaves a wife and five children to mourn their sudden loss.—Montour American.

WE publish next week the speech of Hon. C. R. Buckalew upon the Reduction of the Army. There will also be mailed to each of our subscribers, in pamphlet form, his speech upon removing the jurisdiction in the M'Ardle case. Thus, while enabling them to have this able document, we save the space in our paper for other matter.

WE have received from the well known publishers, Dick & Fitzgerald, New York, two books in paper covers entitled "Spencer's Comic Speeches and Humorous Recitations" and "Frost's Dialogues for Young Folks." They are designed for schools, academies, etc., and supply a want long felt among our young folks. Price thirty cents each.

WE have been shown a quality of superior wine by L. N. Moyer of this place. It is put up at Passaic, New Jersey, and is manufactured from American grapes. It is pure and healthy, and just the thing for invalids or for communion service. He has also Catawba wine and brandy put up by the same parties. Store in Exchange Block, on Main St.

A CORRESPONDENT inquires why the difficulty at Harrisburg in 1838, obtained the name in history of "The Buckshot War?"

We presume it arose from the following passage in the "General Orders No1" issued by Maj. Gen. Patterson on that occasion: "The volunteers of the first division, will assemble in winter uniform, with knapsacks, provided with thirteen rounds of buck-shot cartridges."

WE propose to begin the publication next week, of a series of papers written by "One of the Soldiers?" in relation to the present state of public affairs; in which he gives the powers that be, a bit of his mind. We believe the writer is not a member of the Democratic party; and we do not entirely endorse his views and statements, but we give them as the opinions of a gentleman competent and qualified to judge.

A SPLENDID assortment of Cloths, Cassimeres and Vestings is now to be found at David Lowenberg's well known establishment. The stock is composed of the newest and best patterns, selected with his well-known good taste, and can hardly fail to please the most fastidious. For a perfect fit, and for lasting qualities, these goods cannot be surpassed. Don't forget to give him a call before purchasing elsewhere, or you may regret it.

A PERFECT IMPOSSIBILITY.—To be comfortable in a badly fitting suit of clothes. It is contrary to all the rules of human nature. Call on our friend Chemberlin and get him to furnish you with what you need, and you will never have to complain. His suits are miracles of comfort and elegance, and his prices are such as to suit all classes of customers. His stock of underclothing and gentlemen's goods, is also well worth examining.

DARING BURGLARY.—On last Sunday evening between nine and ten o'clock we were aroused from our slumbers, and informed that Senator Buckalew's residence was being robbed. It is located about half a mile from town, and knowing that it was vacant, his family being in Washington, we hastened to the scene of action. On our arrival we found the burglars had escaped, and the neighbors, twenty strong, armed with swords, guns, revolvers, axes and bludgeons, had re-captured the building without loss.

It would seem that Mrs. Dillan about nine o'clock saw lights moving about the house on both first and second floors. She at once sent word to Mr. Barkle, another neighbor, who has charge of the premises in the Senator's absence, stating that either he had returned, or robbers were in the house. Mr. Barkle at once sent to town and to Turkey Hill for reinforcements, and the enemy as before stated, escaped. They entered by the back kitchen door, and escaped by the north-eastern door, leaving open also the one to the south-west. A number of books had been piled up on the table, the clothes-presses emptied of their contents, and the rooms present ed the appearance of a hasty raid. A carpet bag of clothing etc., was found a few feet from the door, while a formidable bunch of keys laid on the table. With a delicate instinct they found several jars of preserves, on which they left their mark by perforating the paper covers with their fingers. It is not believed that they succeeded in obtaining anything of value, as the most of the valuables had been removed when the Senator left for Washington. It is to be hoped that these scoundrels will soon find themselves in the hands of justice, and have an opportunity to repent of their misdeeds while learning a trade in the penitentiary. We would warn our readers to be ready at any time for such visitors.

THE Record of the Times, notwithstanding Curtin's nomination for Vice-President by the Pa. Radical Convention, carries at its mast-head the name of Galusha A. Grow as its preference.

FRESH Candies both plain and fancy can be always obtained by lovers of sweet things at Jacobs' new confectionary, on Main St. opposite Miller's Store. A large assortment just received. Plain and fancy. Bread always on hand.

A FAMILY REMEDY.—No family should be without some efficacious remedy for the cure of affections, so universally prevalent, as coughs, colds, sore throat, whooping-cough, and croup—some remedy, too, which can be relied upon as safe, sure and certain. Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry combines this desideratum.

WE call the attention of the citizens of Bloom and of the country, to the advertisement of L. T. Sharpless, to be found in another Column. A rare opportunity is offered to procure first class articles at very low rates. His stock is large and complete, and the terms he offers are indemnably good.

WE print in this number the lists of Grand and Traverse Jurors, List of causes for trial, Register's Notices, Treasurer's sale of seated and unseated lands, and other matters of interest to our citizens. To get such information and to keep loosed on the current topics of the day, subscribe for the COLUMBIAN.

PETERSON for April has been received, and as usual is an elegant number. A very pretty steel engraving leads off the April number of this popular and excellent Magazine, followed by an superb fashion plate, with various patterns, music, a variety of reading matter, etc. Terms, $2 per annum; address Chas. J. Peterson, No. 306 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, or apply at our book stores.

IMPORTANT SALE.—On the 28th of the present month Mr. A. S. Koster, will offer for sale at his residence in Madison Township, a large lot of household goods, a splendid collection of furniture, almost new and of the best make. Also a farm of sixty nine acres with dwelling houses, outbuildings etc. all in the best order and thoroughly furnished. This is the best opportunity ever presented to the citizens of Columbia County, to purchase the goods.

A TERRIBLE mining accident occurred at the Diamond Coal Mines, at Scranton, Penn., Tuesday. As seventeen workmen were being lowered down the shaft of the mine, the chain supported the platform gave way and the men were precipitated to the bottom of the shaft, a distance of 185 feet. Eleven of the men were instantly killed, one died soon after, and it is thought that two others will die of the injuries they received. Eleven women are thus made widows and twenty-eight children left fatherless.

"THE New England Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in session at Boston," says the Philadelphia Ledger, "has unanimously adopted resolutions approving of impeachment, and eulogizing General Grant and Secretary Stanton."

When religious societies begin to nominate or endorse candidates for office they lose claim to respect as religious organizations. Politics in churches loses more souls than the clergy ever won. We doubt the piety of priest or sect who offer or endorse resolutions like the above in a religious conference.

THE DIAMOND DICKENS—Oliver Twist, Pictures from Italy, and American Notes.—This is the eleventh volume of the Diamond edition of Mr. Dicken's works, as beautiful in type, illustrations, and binding as its predecessors. Oliver Twist is made to pass uncontaminated through scenes of evil, and the novelist strips vice of its false glitter, wherein Dickens differs from Bulwer and some other writers. In this volume appear the "American Notes" which so damaged "Boz" in the regards of many good people, especially persons who never read them. We have just given them a fresh perusal, and we must confess that we cannot find the occasion for the ancient outcry. He found some things to blame and some to laugh at. He blamed fairly and laughed heartily, and we showed the wounds in our vanity. He is to-day the most popular literary man on the continent; he will be heartily welcomed in his approaching visit; and we hope he will on his return give us a second series of "Notes."—N. Y. Christian Advocate.

The cost of each volume of the beautiful Illustrated, Diamond Dickens is only $1.50; plain edition, $1.25. It can be procured of any bookseller, or will be sent postpaid by the publishers, Ticknor and Fields, Boston.

1868. THE COLUMBIAN. 1868.

NOW IS THE TIME TO SUBSCRIBE.

THE grand results of the late elections, which have revived the drooping fortunes of the Democratic party, and have added to their invincible steadfastness the ardor and the confidence of victory in the contest approaching, have been due, in no inconsiderable degree, to reinforcements from the ranks of our opponents, but these very reinforcements, as well as the putting forth of our own strength, to which they are chiefly due, have been the direct consequence of the systematic and well directed energies of workers throughout the country, who have labored while other slept; who sot to-day the first fruits of their labor, and who are ready and eager to pass forward to grander triumphs and the final victories which will crown their noble toil.

The same energy put forth now will bear a fuller harvest next Fall. The tide is with us to-day, against which we have been struggling for long and weary years. Taken at the flood, it will lead us on to victory.

This is more necessary now than ever, for our opponents, rendered desperate by their recent defeats, have resolved to rule or ruin," and in order to retain power are violating the fundamental principles of our Government. Not only are legally elected Senators and members of the House of Representatives arbitrarily deprived of their seats, but ten sovereign States are disfranchised, the President is in effect deposed, and arbitrary despotic power placed in the hands of one man from whom there is no appeal. Even the Supreme Court is not safe from these levellers, and they now aim to make its decisions subservient partisan purposes. After seven years' trial, our opponents have not only failed to restore the Union, but are daily adding to our debts and taxes, and surely sowing the seeds of another civil war.

There is but one way. Organize, organize, organize and organize now. Experience has taught that in the long intervals between political campaigns, there is no instrumentality so potent as a sound Democratic newspaper, which weekly comes to the home fireside, and there, with truth and cogency, sets forth the facts of the country's condition, and applies to them Democratic principles. No power is to be compared to this for making Democratic votes. One dollar spent for such a weekly visitor does more than ten dollars spent in any other way. Such is the opinion of leading statesmen of our party; such has been the successful practice of our opponents. Can they not be outdone with their own weapons, by getting together the active Democrats of each District, by dividing up the territory to be canvassed, by seeing left that every Democrat who takes no paper now, subscribes to one; by inducing every doubtful voter to subscribe, and those who are unwilling or too poor to subscribe, supplying by gratuitous distribution, raising a fund among zealous and well-to-do friends for the purpose. Sevenfold the cost to every one of them will be saved in taxes.

This is the work which will insure a Democratic triumph in 1868, and so restore the Union, revive industry, and cut down the corruptions and burdens of the Government. "THE COLUMBIAN" will take its full share of this labor. During the last campaign it proved its efficiency, as our majority was 200 greater that in 1864. It is one of the largest papers in the State, with fine bold type, printed on clear white paper by means of a Steam Power Press. While it contains the mass of legal and other advertisements useful to all our citizens, it carefully excludes whatever is foul and filthy once; it contains the latest City and country Market Reports, the latest news from home and abroad, with matter for the Farmer, the Mechanic, the Family and the Children. It will always be true to the party, its principles and its interests. Price $2.00 per annum. Address

Farmer's Department.

Early Chickens.

EARLY chickens, like early vegetables, bring profitable prices; hence any suggestions that will show farmers how to increase their profits in this direction, will be of value.

Usually, with proper care, a few broods of chickens may be hatched very early, on almost any farm. When a hen wants to set, say at any time in January, I give her a moderate number of eggs and allow her to commence business. The first danger is that the sharp weather of January may chill the eggs, when the hen leaves the nest to search for food. If the hen house could be kept warm by a stove, it would undoubtedly pay, not only to protect the eggs of sitting hens, but to promote laying among the rest. When the first eggs hatch, give the hen the warmest place you have about the premises—some spot where she and the brood can enjoy the sun when it shines, and where chilling winds do not reach her. The chickens will require a great deal of hovering, and for the first week or two most hens will do their full duty in this respect towards their progeny; but at the end of ten days or a fortnight, they will become more careless and less inclined to quiet. The true course, then, is to transfer the chickens to another hen just hatching, if it be possible. In fact, to provide for this contingency, after setting the first hen of the season, others should be set every week or two through the cold season, partly with a view to the continued care of the first chickens. There will be no difficulty in making the transfer, if it be done at night while the eggs are hatching, or before the hen leaves the nest and has become familiarized to the appearance of her chickens. Black, white, speckled, striped, large or small are alike acceptable to her, if she can be made to believe that she hatched them. Hence, the best time for making a good stepmother of her, is to put the chickens under her at night; but any other time before her chickens become lively will do, provided you make no special display of them so that she can compare them with her own brood. If you do, you will stand a good chance to fail.

For winter chickens, then, a new mother, as soon as the old one becomes careless or "fussy," is the special need. The other requisites will be apparent. They cannot run out, but must be provided with the driest and warmest quarters possible, and have plenty of good food—cracked corn, scalded meal, buckwheat, hay seeds—and at night must be made secure against rats, or any danger of getting out of their nests and being chilled to death. As to disease, I do not find that they are subject to it than later chickens; in fact, I raised a much greater proportion of those hatched last year in January, February, and very early in March, than of those hatched at later dates. With a good hennery, kept at a pretty equable temperature, (which I have not yet tried,) I should have small fears of plenty of eggs in mid-winter, plenty of chickens in January and February, and very respectable profits from the business in April, May and June.—Country Gentleman.

Greasing Wagons.

BUT few people are aware that they do wagons and carriages more injury by greasing too plentifully than in any other way. A well made wheel will endure common wear from ten to twenty-five years, if care is taken to use the right kind and proper amount of grease; but if this is not attended to, they will be used up in five or six years. Lard should never be used on a wagon, for it will penetrate the hub and work its way out around the tenons of the spokes, and spoil the wheel. Tallow is the best lubricator for wood axletrees, and castor oil for iron.

Just enough grease should be applied to the spindle of the wagon to give it a light coating; this is better than more, for the surplus put on will work out at the ends, and be forced by the shoulder-bands and nut-washers into the hub around the outside of the boxes.

To oil an axletree, first wipe the spindle clean with a cloth wet with spirits of turpentine, and then apply a few drops of castor oil near the shoulder and end. One teaspoonful is sufficient for the whole.—Ohio Farmer.

Making Manure.

AN immense amount of fertilizing material might be secured on a farm, by simply making use of the well known absorbent property of clay, by which we mean any earth which is not mere sand. Hauled into the yard, and mixed with other manure, it is worth at least one-third as much as the same bulk of the pure article.

Recently we came across the following paragraph in an exchange from the pen of John Johnson, of New York, who is amongst the most successful farmers of the Union, and who well shows the value of the practice we recommend. He says:

I am drawing swamp muck two and one-half miles; put a good deal in my yards before I put in my sheep and cattle, and spread straw over it. I have a basin in the lower part of one yard, that I put thirty loads in; the remainder I am putting in where the liquids run out of one yard. I expect to get in all 150 loads, and large ones; I get as large loads as I wish to draw for 36 cents, dug out ready to load. I mix my sheep and cattle dung with the muck. When I sell my sheep in Mar. or the 1st of Apr. I expect to have 450 loads of the very best of manure to put on my land next August or September. I shall keep drawing muck as long as the roads are good. When I send two teams I generally get eight loads a day.

Early Tomatoes.

To have tomatoes early, plant a few seeds any time this month in the pots in which the plants are growing in the kitchen window. They will soon germinate and grow very rapidly, and when the plants are two inches high, set one of each in boxes three inches square, or very small flower pots, and give them the same attention the house plants get. As soon as all danger from frost is over, transfer the tomato plants, which will now be budded and perhaps covered with miniature fruit, to the south side of a high fence or sunny side of a building, into not over rich soil, and you will have ripe tomatoes on the 4th of July, if you don't miss it, and if parst experience and a favorable season are worth anything.—Springfield Republican.

"BRIDGET," said a mistress to her Irish servant, "where's the gridiron?"

"An' sure mam, I'just after giving it to my sister's own cousin, Bridget O'Flaherty; the thing is so full of holes it's no good at all."

For the Young Folks.

The Old Man and Death.

AN Old Man that had travelled a long way with a huge bundle of sticks, found himself so weary that he cast it down, and called upon Death to deliver him from his most miserable existence. Death came straightway at his call, and asked him what he wanted. "Pray good sir," says he, "do me but the favor to help me up with my burden again."

It is one thing to call for Death, and another to see him coming.

The Swallow in Chancery.

A SWALLOW had built her nest under the eaves of a Court of Justice. Before her young ones could fly, a Serpent gliding out of his hole ate them all up. When the poor bird returned to her nest and found it empty, she began a pitiable wailing; but a neighbor suggesting, by way of comfort, that she was not the first bird who had lost her young. "True," she replied, "but it is not only my little ones that I mourn, but that I should have been wronged in that very place where the injured fly for justice."

The Eagle and the Fox.

AN Eagle and a Fox had lived together as good neighbors; the Eagle at the summit of a high tree, the Fox in a hole at the foot of it. One day, however, while the Fox was abroad, the Eagle made a swoop at the Fox's cub, and carried it off to her nest, thinking that her lofty dwelling would secure her from the Fox's revenge. The Fox on her return home, upbraided the Eagle for this breach of friendship, and begged earnestly to have her young ones again; but finding her entreaties were of no avail, she snatched a torch from an altar-fire that had been lighted hard by, and involving the whole tree in flame and smoke, soon made the Eagle restore, through fear of herself and her own young ones, the cub which she had just now denied to her most earnest prayers.

The tyrant, though he may despise the tears of the oppressed, is never safe from their vengeance.

The Old Lion.

A LION worn out with years lay stretched upon the ground, utterly helpless, and drawing his last breath. A Boar came up, and to satisfy an ancient grudge, drove at him with his tusks. Next a Bull, determined to be revenged on an old enemy, gored him with his horns. Upon this an Ass, seeing that the old Lion could thus be treated with impunity, thought that he would show his spite also, and came and threw his heels in the Lion's face. Whereupon the dying beast exclaimed: "The insults of the powerful were bad enough, but those I could have managed to bear; but to be spurned by so base a creature as thou—the disgrace of nature—is to die a double death."

The Blackamoor.

A CERTAIN man bought a Blackamoor, and thinking that the color of his skin arose from the neglect of his former master, he no sooner brought him home than he procured all manner of scouring apparatus, scrubbing brushes, soap, and sandpaper, and set to work whith his servants to wash him white again. They drenched and rubbed him for an hour, but all in vain; his skin remained as black as ever, while the poor wretch all but died from the cold he caught under the operation.

No human means avail of themselves to change a nature originally evil.

The Fox and the Mask.

A FOX had stolen into the house of an actor, and in rummaging among his various properties, laid hold of a highly-finished Mask. "A fine looking head, indeed!" cried he; "what a pity it is that it wants brains?"

A fair outside is but a poor substitute for inward worth.

The Dog and the Hides.

SOME hungry Dogs, seeing some raw Hides which a skinner had left in the bottom of a stream, and not being able to reach them, agreed among themselves to drink up the river to get at the prize. So they set to work, but they all burst themselves with drinking before ever they came near the Hides.

They who aim at an object by unreasonable means, are apt to ruin themselves in the attempt.

The Raven and the Swan.

A RAVEN envied a Swan the whiteness of her plumage; and, thinking that its beauty was owing to the water in which she lived, he deserted the altars where he used to find his livelihood, and betook himself to the pools and streams. There he plumed and dressed himself and washed his coat, but all to no purpose, for his plumage remained as black as ever, and he himself soon perished for want of his usual food.

Change of scene is not change of nature.

The Miser.

A MISER, to make sure of his property, sold all that he had, and converted it into a great lump of gold, which he hid in a hole in the ground, and went continually to visit and inspect it. This roused the curiosity of one of his workmen, who, suspecting that there was a treasure, when his master's back was turned, went to the spot, and stole it away. When the Miser returned, and found the place empty, he wept and tore his hair. But a neighbor who saw him in this extravagant grief, and learned the cause of it, said, "Fret thyself no longer but take a stone and put it in the same place, and think it is your lump of gold for, as you never mean to use it, the one will do you as much good as the other.

The worth of money is not in its possession, but its use.

The Doctor and his Patient.

A DOCTOR had been for some time attending upon a sick Man, who, however, died under his hands. At the funeral, the Doctor went about among the relations, saying, "Our poor friend, if he had only refrained from wine, and attended to his inside, and used proper means, would not have been lying there." One of the mourners answered him, "My good sir, it is of no use your saying this now; you ought to have prescribed these things when your Patient was alive to take them.

The best advice may come too late.

"MR. ERSKINE," said a testy Judge to the great barrister, "if what you lay down is law, I may as well burn my books!" "I think, my lord," replied the advocate, "that you might better read them!"

DRUGS & MEDICINES.

HOOFLAND'S

GERMAN BITTERS.

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS,

AND

Hoofland's German Tonic.

Prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson,

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

The Great Remedies

FOR ALL DISEASES OF THE

LIVER, STOMACH, or DIGESTIVE ORGANS.

Hoofland's German Bitters

Is compounded of the pure juices, (or as they are medicinally term ed, Extracts) of Roots, Herbs and Barks, making a preparation highly concentrated, and entire ly free from Alcoholic admixture of any kind.

Hoofland's German Tonic,

Is a combination of all the ingredients of the Bitters, with the purest quality of Santa Cruz Rum, Orange, etc., making one of the most pleasant and agreeable remedies ever offered to the public.

Those preferring a Medicine free from Alcoholic admixture, will use

Hoofland's German Bitters.

In cases of nervous depression, when some alcoholic stimulus is necessary,

Hoofland's German Tonic

should be used.

The Bitters or the Tonic are both equally good, and contain the same medicinal virtues.

The stomach, from a variety of causes, such as Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Nervous Debility, etc., is very apt to have its functions deranged. The result of which is, that the patient suffers from several or more of the following diseases:

Constipation, Flatulence, Inward Piles, Fulness of Blood to the Head, Acidity of the Stomach, Nausea, Heartburn, Disgust for Food, Fulness or Weight in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Fluttering at the Pit of the Stomach, Swimming of the Head, Hurried or Difficult Breathing, Fluttering at the Heart, Choking or Suffocating Sensations when in a Lying Posture, Dimness of Vision, Dots or Webs before the Sight, Dull Pain in the Head, Deficiency of Perspiration, Yellowness of the Skin and Eyes, Pain in the Side, Back, Chest, Limbs, etc., Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constant Imaginings of Evil, and Great Depression of Spirits.

These remedies will effectually cure Liver Complaint, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Chronic or Nervous Debility, Chronic Diarrhœa, Disease of the Kidneys, and all Diseases arising from a Disordered Liver, Stomach, or Intestines.

DEBILITY,

RESULTING FROM ANY CAUSE WHATEVER;

PROSTRATION OF THE SYSTEM,

INDUCED BY SEVERE LABOR, HARDSHIPS, EXPOSURE, PAYENS, ETC.

There is no medicine extant equal to these remedies in such cases. A tone and vigor is imparted to the whole System, the Appetite is strengthened, food is enjoyed, the stomach digests promptly, the blood is purified, the complexion becomes sound and healthy, the yellow tinge is eradicated from the eyes, a bloom is given to the cheeks, and the weak and nervous invalid becomes a strong and healthy being.

Persons Advanced in Life,

And feeling the hand of time weighing heavily upon them, with all its attendant ills, will find in the use of this BITTERS, or the TONIC, an elastic foot-step, and new life into their veins. restore in a measure the energy and ardor of more youthful days, build up their shrunken forms, and give health and happiness to their remaining years.

NOTICE.

It is a well established fact that fully one-half of the human population are seldom in the enjoyment of good health, or, in other words, as the expression, "never feel well." They are languid, devoid of all energy, extremely nervous, and have no appetite.

To this class of persons the BITTERS, or the TONIC, is especially recommended.

WEAK AND DELICATE CHILDREN

Are made strong by the use of either of these remedies. They will cure every case of MARASMUS, without fail.

Thousands of certificates have accumulated in the hands of the proprietor, but space will allow of the publication of but a few. Those, it will be observed, are men of note and of such standing that they must be believed.

TESTIMONIALS.

Hon. Geo. W. Woodward,

Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pa., writes

Philadelphia, March 16, 1867.

"I find Hoofland's German Bitters a good tonic, useful in diseases of the digestive organs, and of great benefit in cases of debility, and want of nervous action in the system.

Yours truly,

"GEO. W. WOODWARD"

Hon. James Thompson,

Judge of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

Philadelphia, April 27, 1866.

"I consider 'Hoofland's German Bitters' a valuable medicine in case of attacks of Dyspepsia or Indigestion. I can certify this from my experience of it.

Yours, with respect,

"JAMES THOMPSON."

From Rev. Joseph H. Kennard, D.D.,

Pastor of the Tenth Baptist Church, Philadelphia.

Dr. Jackson—Dear Sir:—I make use frequently in my practice of your German Bitters, and find in all cases of debility, or want of action in the system, they are productive of the most happy results. I consider them a valuable preparation, and recommend them in preference to any other with which I am acquainted.

Yours truly,

J. H. KENNARD.

From Rev. E. D. Fendall,

Assistant Editor Christian Chronicle, Philadelphia.

I have derived decided benefit from the use of Hoofland's German Bitters, and feel it my privilege to recommend them as a tonic valuable alike to all who are suffering from general debility or from diseases arising from derangement of the liver.

Yours truly,

E. D. FENDALL.

THE AMERICAN HAY KNIFE AND FORK.—We the undersigned citizens of Columbia County witnessed the trial of hay forks on the farm of Mr. Pursel, in Hemlock Township, on Monday, May 7, 1866, between the American Hay Knife and Fork manufactured by SLIFER, WALLS, SHRINER & Co., of Lewisburg, Pa., and the Rundel's Patent Hay Hook. The American Fork lifted more hay in one draught than the Rundel in three. We are satisfied it will take as much hay into the mow as two good horses can draw. We also saw it cutting hay, and think it cannot be beat as a hay knife, and cheerfully recommend it as the best hay fork and knife we have ever seen.
